Ionizing radiation (ionising radiation) is radiation that carries enough energy to knock electrons from atoms or molecules, thereby ionizing them. Ionizing radiation is made up of energetic subatomic particles, ions or atoms moving at high speeds (usually greater than 1% of the speed of light), and electromagnetic waves on the high-energy end of the electromagnetic spectrum.

History. Sir Isaac Newton computed the speed of sound in air as 979 feet per second (298 m/s), which is too low by about 15%. Newton's analysis was good save for neglecting the (then unknown) effect of rapidly-fluctuating temperature in a sound wave (in modern terms, sound wave compression and expansion of air is an adiabatic process, not an isothermal process).

To make interacting photons, the team shone a weak laser through a cloud of cold rubidium atoms. Rather than emerging from this cloud separately, the photons within the laser merged bound in groups of three.

A starship is not an independent entity – no more than a jet plane is independent just because it can leave the ground. Imagine for a moment, a fully loaded 747 jet airliner flying from Los Angeles to New York.

Given the same amount of absorbed solar energy coming in, the amount of IR escaping to space at the top of the atmosphere will indeed be the same no matter how many greenhouse gases there are (assuming the system is in equilibrium).

What Causes the Greenhouse Effect? Â« Roy Spencer, PhD

Unfortunately, there is a massive confusion between causality and equations. Much of what passes for "theoretical" science is based upon the false subterranean assumption that the equations CAUSE reality.
