Note: Samples are married men and women with spouse present and at least one own child in the household. The gender gap in employment is defined as the difference in log odds of being employed: , where $Gap = \ln\left[\frac{m}{1-m}\right] - \ln\left[\frac{f}{1-f}\right]$ m = percent of married fathers employed, and f = percent of married mothers employed.

The End of the Gender Revolution? - Vanneman Home Page

The group of people who most desperately need a “gender revolution” (you may recall there is already a movement afoot addressing the harm of gender “issues” called “feminism”) are women, yet National Geographic failed to acknowledge this on either cover, figuring, perhaps, that boring women and their gender troubles are old news.
